Report on Educational Visit to Parle -G Factory

Educational trips are always an integral part of the curriculum in Bal Bharati Public School, Noida. Such trips provide opportunities for experiential learning to the students. On December 15, 2018, one hundred and nineteen enthusiastic students of class VI escorted by eight teachers visited Parle -G Factory in Sector 63, Noida. The fragrant aroma of their favourite candies welcomed them all as they reached the venue. Parle Products is India's largest manufacturer of biscuits and confectionary for the past eighty years. The name symbolizes nutrition, quality and good taste. In the initial segment of the visit, the students witnessed a documentary film related to waste management which was followed by an animated documentary which demonstrated the entire process of making the biscuits- right from assembling all the ingredients till the final packaging of the finished product. A short video about the growth of the Parle Company from 1929 till today was featured. The video also explained the manufacturing of different Parle confectioneries and snacks such as 'Hide and

They were then taken inside the factory to have a view of various stages of production of candies and toffees such as mixing, moulding and packaging the final product. The students were delighted to see how candies, toffees and their favourite biscuits are made and at the same time, realized the importance of how one vision can make such a huge difference to the world. This will motivate them to work harder than before to achieve the goals in life. It was an informative, enjoyable and a great learning experience for the students. The visit culminated with the distribution of Parle G biscuits and candies to the students and teachers as a goodwill gesture by the company.
