VOICES OF THE UNRECOGNIZED

“Sometimes it’s not about choice, it’s about need”

In a society of voices unheard with thoughts buried alive, surrounded by identities long lost, just the fittest survives. But who constitutes the fittest? And more importantly who gets to decide? Trafficking, Inequality, wage gaps, Prostitution and a long history of exploitation are not new to us and neither do they sound alien. Women, not of a particular society, neither those belonging to a particular country, but all over the world have come face to face with these issues and still continue to combat these in some way or the other. UN Women an organisation levied upon with the task to uplift a community constituting half the population of the world and end the atrocities faced by them (Ironic isn't it), was summoned today to discuss sensitive and intricate issues such as ‘sex work’, ‘sex trade’ and ‘prostitution’.

The committee began with all the countries giving their individual stand on the agenda and was soon seen submerged in immense debate due to the conflicting opinions and viewpoints of various representatives. A plethora of topics such as poverty, lack of education amongst women, child sex abuse and causes of women indulging in prostitution were discussed and deliberated upon. The main aim of the committee was to bring up the unheard and suppressed voices of women from all over the world and demand for their equal rights. Irrespective of all the alternatively wide ranging views, this motto of the committee to its very core remains unchanged.

No consensus were reached as of today, but hopefully with further debates this committee will be able to uphold the ideal of Equality and recognize the voices and demands long abandoned.

LIBYAN CRISIS; RESORTING TO PEACE

Soon after the general procedures of the United Nations Security Council (UNSC), the GSL began where the countries discussed about the political as well as the economical crisis in Libya. The discussion revolved around the Military Intervention in Libya which took place in the year 2011 as well as about the Libya Civil War which started in 2014 and is still continuing.

During the discussion, the delegates of Italy put up a question regarding the pressure of ISIS and what does the country Libya need to do to combat this terrorist group. The delegates of Libya replied to this question that they needed allied military forces and resources from other countries to help exterminate ISIS for the long run. The main points that came up and were clearly highlighted during the discussion of GSL were that the terrorists groups in Libya were given too much power and the lives of civilians were in danger. The delegates of countries like the republic of China and Senegal argued that Libya's affair was one which did not need any International recognition and was a domestic affair.

The United States of America, Uruguay and Sweden appealed that civilians of Libya didn't have anyone to protect them from violence and poverty. Thus, this issue had to be addressed and looked upon internationally. The chairperson, Mr. Konrad Rohr, explained all the delegates a political concept which was developed by the Canadian International Commission known as RTP (Right To Protection). This concept stated that if a country is not able to protect its civilians anymore, the international committee can step in and take the measures needed to protect the civilians. It is not a legal concept.

The motion decided was "Migration Crisis and Immigrant Conflicts".

The debate included the problems faced by the migrants of Libya.

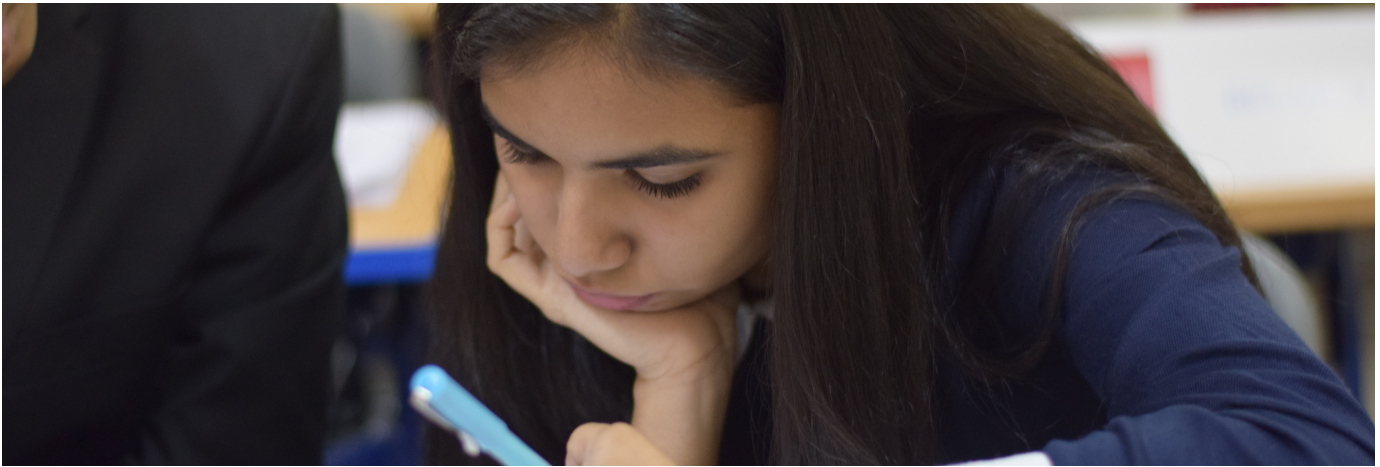

The delegates of Italy addressed that it had taken the migrants from Libya and help reduce human trafficking. The delegates of Republic of China stated the media had a major role in exaggerating this situation and that the entering of migrants of Libya in Italy was a huge threat to the national security of European Union. The delegates of Yemen raised the point of unaccompanied children that fled from Libya.

The meeting today majorly discussed the problems of refugees and their fear after the assassination of Muammar Gaddafi and the civilians need to be protected.

DRUG TRAFFICKING – A SWEET POISON TO KILL THY

The United Nations Office On Drugs And Crime started with a lot of questions about the conference from the curious delegates. “DRUG TRAFFICKING” was the topic about which the delegates were speaking. The council started off at a good note, but it didn’t take for the conference to heat up. The conference was kicked open with a speech by The Delegate Of France. Many questions about drug influence in France were taken up by the delegates. The conference was proceeded at a calm note ,but The Delegate of The United States Of America was the attention seeker .

Pointing out the causes of drug trafficking, discussing the Narco terrorism and influence of drugs on the country were the procedures followed by the delegates during the session. The problem of ‘Trading of Cocaine’ in France was put up by the Delegate of Pakistan. The Delegate of The United States Of America talked about the motion of Drugs.

The unmoderated Caucus was taken up and the topic chosen were ‘Impact of drug trafficking in the country’ and ‘financing of terrorism’, the second session of the conference the delegates seemed revived after the lunch. There was an enthusiastic participation of many delegates on the topic of “financing of terrorism”.

The Delegate of Pakistan spoke about Narco Terrorism and it’s effect on their country. Almost everyone was in full swing, putting up splendid points for varied topic. There was a commanding presence of the chair. He explained each and every procedure for the delegates to follow during the conference. The most impressive aspect of the session was the decorum maintained by the chair. The first day conference of UNOCD was pretty interesting and the delegates seem to have made up their mind to find the solutions of the problem. After watching the first day’s conference, it can be said that end of second day will bring a solution to the problems of WORLD DRUG problem and TERRORISM.
