Ajmer is a bustling city, 130km southwest of Jaipur and just 13km from the Hindu pilgrimage town of Pushkar. It contains one of India's most important Muslim pilgrimage centers, the shrine of Khwaja Muin-ud-din Chishti, who founded the Chishtiya order, the prime Sufi order in India. As well as some superb examples of early Muslim architecture, Ajmer is also a significant centre for the Jain religion, possessing an amazing golden Jain temple at Nareli.
