Card-making is a fun activity in which children not only do they get a chance to practice fine motor skills, but, they can also practice kindness, gratitude, and creativity. Indeed, when done mindfully and with purpose greeting card crafts can be an enriching activity as the words inside are physical records and together with the imagery on a card makes that message more memorable.

On the occasion of 32nd Foundation Day, an interclass “Birthday card making activity was conducted in which students got their A4 sheets along with the cut outs of different shapes like circle, triangle, square...etc from florescent/coloured sheets and created something unique from shapes (for example cake using different square or circle shapes).

They wrote 2 lines to praise their school on the occasion of 32nd Foundation Day. This enhanced not only thinking skills but also their writing skills. They tried to beautify their handwriting also. All the students were full of energy to bring out the best of them. They participated with enthusiasm .Students made different types of creative cakes and balloons and school with different mathematical shapes. Each card was unique. The oratory skills of the students were outstanding.

The activity was quite successful, it led to healthy competition among students as they had to portray their creativity in drawing, writing as well as handwriting and speaking skills. After the completion of the activity students were confident it not only enhanced their speaking skills but also helped them in gaining self-confidence.
