(EDUCATIONAL EXCURSION TO NBT, DELHI)

Date : 25/08/23
Venue : National Book Trust, New Delhi
Attended By : 29 students (Class III) along with three staff

A group of 29 students embarked on an exciting educational trip to NBT Delhi, on August 25th, 2023. The selection was based on a written quiz on the book “Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs”. The test consisted of five questions that assessed the students' knowledge of the classic fairy tale and their understanding of its themes, characters, and moral lessons. The top scorers were given the opportunity to visit NBT.

The trip to NBT, Delhi, was a resounding success. The students were exposed to the world of literature in a fun and educational manner. They learned about the writing process, explored their creativity, and expanded their literary horizons. The day began with a general interaction and exchange of words with NBT staff who exposed the students to their exhaustive library.

Treasuring the books in library

The NBT library proved to be a treasure trove of books spanning various genres, books for all age-groups and in diverse languages. The students were given the opportunity to explore the library and browse through the extensive collection. The highlight of the trip was the chance for each student to select a book of their choice to bring home. The students carefully browsed through the shelves, read summaries, and discussed their choices with each other. This activity not only ignited their passion for reading but also encouraged independent decision-making.

The day's events were further enriched by an engaging author session with Usha Chawla. The students were captivated by her storytelling skills and enthusiasm. She started the session with some riddles which took students' excitement to next level. She shared insights about her writing process, inspiration, and even read excerpts from some of the books from the NBT Library. The students had the opportunity to ask questions and interact with the author, fostering their curiosity about the world of literature.

Following the author session, Tanya Jain led a creative writing workshop. She encouraged the students to use their imagination and guided them through a writing exercise as they worked in groups. Students were given a writing pad each to put their ideas and imagination in words. The students explored different genres, characters, and settings, enhancing their creative thinking and writing abilities. The interactive session allowed the students to express themselves freely and gain confidence in their writing skills.

What's better than a storytelling session!

In conclusion, the trip to the National Book Trust (NBT) in Vasant Kunj, New Delhi, proved to be an invaluable experience for the students. Undoubtedly, the journey to NBT, Vasant Kunj, opened doors to a world of knowledge, creativity, and inspiration. It reinforced the importance of nurturing young minds with literature and the power of sharing stories. As the students returned, they carried with them not only the books they selected, but curiosity that would fuel their learnings.

Deep into spilling their creativity onto papers

Crafting words and dreams together!

Unlocking the pages of inspiration
